

MET A HORRIBLE DEATH.

A Young Austrian Killed by a Cave of Earth in a Clove Street Sewer.

Death Results From Suffocation Though Workmen Strive Heroically to Rescue Him.

The Coroner's Jury Attach no Blame to Anyone, But Make a Recommendation to the City.

Michael Rajczek—pronounced Galinaz by some insertable method of pronunciation—was killed in a sewer on Clove street yesterday by the earth caving in upon him. The accident occurred on South Clove near Pacific street, in front of the double stone house belonging to Widow McNeal. The ditch was dug last Saturday and Foreman Hallam had his gang yesterday morning putting the finishing touches upon the trench preparatory to laying a pipe. Several men had been in the sewer but had come out, having finished their work. Galinaz was the only man left in the trench. He had about ten minutes' work to do. He had just thrown a shovel of dirt to the surface when, without warning of any kind, the west side of the ditch gave way for about forty feet and he was buried beneath the slide.

Foreman Hallam and his men went to work immediately to rescue the unfortunate man and had his head free in five minutes some claim, but others say it was fully nine minutes before his face was uncovered. It took about half an hour to free the body entirely. A rope was placed under the man and the man drawn out by Michael Hall, Sergeant Nicholson and Officer Latham. Dr. Baldwin was present and tried artificial respiration for half an hour, but without avail.

The partner of Galinaz, Frank Iezek, was present and told Marshal Hard that Galinaz had considerable money upon his person. The dead man was searched and $288.35 was found in the left pocket of his trousers. The pocket was sewed up, and when the stitches were cut tobacco smoke was found, the mouth sewed together; in the sack was found a pipe, also sewed, and in the purse was found the money—two $100 bills, a $50 bill, some gold and silver. The money was placed in the safe at the city hall and will be turned over to the coroner. The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Sennett and removed to his rooms on Park avenue. Yesterday afternoon Coroner Follenius summoned a jury consisting of Frank S. P. Lindsey, Daniel Healey, E. L. Kellogg, Theodore Wolf, James McGill and William Perkins, who heard the evidence of several of the fellow workmen of the deceased. Dr. Baldwin and Officers Nicholson and La Roca, and returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by being crushed in a sewer and that no blame attached to any one for the accident, but the attention of the city authorities was called to the dangerous practice of excavating for sewers without affording ample protection to the laborers by sustaining the side walls. Some of the jury were in favor of laying the man's death to the criminal carelessness of the city engineer having the work in charge, but the compromise verdict was agreed upon.

The responsibility of the man's death rests somewhere. Clove street is all made ground, it having been worked in gulch mining. The trench had been cut to the usual depth of ten feet and was just wide enough for one man to work in it. The walls were perpendicular and seemingly secure, at least they looked that way to the practiced eye of the foreman who had been furnished with lumber but did not think it necessary to use it. Perhaps he might have done so had he known that a water pipe running parallel with the sewer had been lately put down and had ruptured more or less moisture to adjoining earth.

The workman who was standing on top of the excavation throwing back the dirt thrown up by Galinaz says he would not have hesitated if he had been ordered into the sewer as there was no dirt falling and he had never seen a cave in a sewer unless small sections first crumbled off. Other workmen say the sides of the trench were clean cut and seemingly as substantial as any ground they had ever gone through. City Engineer Miller regrets the accident, but holds the foreman blameless, as he is satisfied the cave would not have occurred had it not been for the moisture imparted to the earth by the concealed water pipe. This is the first fatal accident on the city work proper, and twenty-eight miles of sewer have been laid. One man was killed and several injured in making connections for private parties. Mr. Miller says the accident was an unavoidable one, such as will happen on large public works, though the utmost care be taken.

Michael Galinaz had been in Helena about two months, and from papers found upon his person, he had worked upon some railroad before coming to this place. He was a young man thirty years of age, a native of Austria, where his mother and father still live, and had, at one time, a brother living in Chicago. The friends of the deceased say that Galinaz wrote two letters to his brother while in Helena but they were returned to him. He was sober and industrious and kept an account of his wages and expenses. At the time of his death $30 were due him from the city which would have been paid him next Thursday, pay day, and which will be turned over to the administrator of the estate.

Look Out for Bears. Those of our citizens who have time to study the bill-boards, may have noticed pictures of a procession of bears without knowing their meaning. These bears, it seems, are supposed to be trading their way towards Chicago, carrying back the eastern-made soaps that our people would not have after they had once used Montana's Own Soap.

The disappointed feelings of the bears may be judged by their pained expression of countenance.

Something That Can Be Believed. A. K. No! no! but for less money than any other dealer in Montana.

THEY WILL SHOOT TO KILL.

A Hunting Party to Start To-day for the Flathead Country.

Billy Muth, Marshal Hard, A. J. Davidson; Geo. Platt, Gen. Greene, H. M. Parson, T. H. Kleinschmidt, R. C. Wallace, R. E. Fisk and R. H. Floyd-Jones, will get out their guns, fish poles and canteens to-day and start for a two or three weeks' outing in the Flathead country. With such an array of talent it is safe to predict that all the big game from Major Roman's headquarters to the head of Lake Blaine will be mutilated or slaughtered in a degree unparalleled in the history of hunting. Marshal Hard and Billy Muth will go after the big game, while Mr. Wallace and Bob Fisk put in their time downing the feathered game. Mr. Floyd-Jones will take charge of the cuisine. The medical department and arsenal will be under the supervision of Mr. Davidson, especially the medical department. A full supply of snake bite cure will be taken along and smuggled through the Indian reservation. Gen. Greene will study the flora and fauna of the country, George Platt will capture a few wild horses for his livery stable and will endeavor to "break" them himself before he returns and will recommend them as saddle horses. Mr. Kleinschmidt will direct the campaign and look out for the financial department, and altogether this party will undoubtedly have a merry time. Besides his other duties as warrior, Capt. Fisk will be war correspondent and will have some interesting tales to reveal when he returns. It has been agreed in advance that a collection be taken each day to purchase a string of the funny tribe from some Indian boy. Such game is too small for these renowned nimrods and disciples of Zack Walton.

Patrick Conlon, the eminent Irish orator of Butte, whose mellifluous sentences have fired the hearts of all who have ever listened to his eloquence, is in the city. Mr. Conlon is the gentleman who made that famous speech in Butte which so nearly boosted the republican party into success in Silver Bow county. On arriving in Helena he was met at the depot by a number of republican friends and escorted to the Hotel Broadwater, where he set upon an elegant supper for a small circle of seventy-five. Mr. Conlon is now stopping at the Hotel Rodney. As a sample of his unrivaled eloquence the following, taken from a speech at the Butte skating rink and published in the Mining Journal, is given:

"Fellow citizens—Looking at the republicans,—"and gentlemen"—looking at the democrats present—"when I see so many eager-looking faces forming me"—pointing his finger in front of him—"and beyond me"—throwing his thumb over his right shoulder—"it makes me proud to be a republican and an American citizen. (Loud applause.)"

Police Court Doings.

Yesterday was an unusually quiet one for Monday in Judge Sanders' court. Besides a few ordinary Saturday night drunks there were no applicants for justice except a young married woman who got on a tear and was found drunk. She claimed domestic troubles was the cause of her spree; that her husband was old enough to be her grandfather and she did not like him. She appeared truly penitent for her conduct and was set free by his honor, who warned her not to let it happen again. Drying her tears the woman left. She was not above 20 years of age.
